2. Would you be good enough to let me know (a) the source from which these parts will come when you find out, (b) the fastest method of shipment, and (c) if there are any substitutions or shortages in the list. In view of the way things are moving, I believe we should discuss the question of appropriate reimbursement, if required, as a separate matter. If it would make it any easier to avoid an elaborate cost accounting setup, perhaps we could have these items issued to us on a loan basis with the understanding that we would reimburse for any items later lost or damaged or something of the sort. I sometimes find that borrowing is faster than inter-agency procurement.
